President of the University

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

To the Class of 1938:

As the University year draws to a close, we are reluctant to realize that your undergraduate days also come to an end. In another sense your college life never ends. You will always be a part of the life of this place and this University, and they will always be a part of your life. College mates, fraternity, dormitory, professors, library, laboratories, Davie poplar, Franklin street, the bell tower, Battle woods, Kenan stadium, the arboretum, classes, games, elections, eighteenth century buildings, and rock walls, modern institutes and forums, struggles in student government, freedom and democracy, life callings, impulses for public service and human betterment, spiritual aspirations—all these and more have been a part of your life and development forever associated with the traditions and ways of Chapel Hill.

With all our frustrations and failures, you leave behind many real contributions to the immortal stream of University life and carry into the world their enduring satisfactions. In your college quadrennium, many improvements have been made in the life of the college and the University by your own initiative or with your cooperation and support. In the past four years were created, established, or made effective the following:

A restudy and strengthening of the honor system and the organizing of class honor councils to reinforce the central student honor council; the General College, with a reorganized curriculum, a dean and an especially responsible group of faculty advisers for freshmen and sophomores; improved dormitory conditions and management, the organization of the dormitory council and the inauguration of senior or graduate student advisers in the freshmen dormitories; improved dormitory provisions for women by reconditioning Archer House as a graduate women's dormitory and the building of the new graduate women's dormitory; the improvement of student health and hygiene by the establishment of a department of education and athletics with a large staff in charge of a curriculum in the college and graduate school, courses in hygiene for all freshmen, an expanded intramural athletic program for the whole student body, some two scores of new tennis courts, a dozen intramural fields, the new Fetzer Field for track and other sports and the new gymnasium and swimming pool for both men and women students; a central records office for cumulative personnel records; general placement service; testing service; and reading clinic; student-faculty day; a student advisory committee to the assistant controller; the reduction in the price of textbooks and laundry rates; the student co-operative movement; the organization of the Division of Teacher Training, the Division of Social Work and the Division of Public Health; the establishment of a new art department, a new department of dramatic art, and the especial strengthening of the departments of physics, chemistry, philosophy, German and education; the assumption of responsibility for the School of Library Science by the University; the acquisition of the Carolina Inn for use as an inn, faculty social center, and alumni headquarters; the reconditioning of Swain Hall and the installation of a modern cafeteria; the renovation of the Alumni Building; marked increase in the facilities and equipment of Venable Hall, and provision for the transformation of Phillips Hall into a modern physics building; reconditioning of and additions to the central power line and heating system to meet the needs of an expanding University; the saving of the Medical School; the addition of a third floor to the medical building, enlargement of the teaching staff and provision for the addition of a clinical annex to the infirmary for the purposes of the Medical School; and plans completed for the building of a new modern medical building; the general budgetary recovery of the University and restoration of the salaries from the 68% basis to 93.5%; and the settlement of the major issues of consolidation within the University framework to serve the needs of all the people of North Carolina.

During your college generation, the recovery, the general improvement and special advancements of the University on all fronts has been made possible through the initiative and cooperation of the students, the faculty, the administrative staff, the alumni, the budget commission, the legislature, the governor and the people of North Carolina, and the people of the United States.

With appreciation of your interest, your cooperative participation, and your devoted loyalty, Alma Mater sends you forth with an affection and faith that will go with you always.

DEAN'S MESSAGE

To the Members of the Graduating Class:

This message, which will reach you when Chapel Hill is beauteous with spring blossoms, is written in October, when all about us is the glory of autumn. What a beautiful setting for beautiful companionship! The University has just opened with a record enrollment and with a delightful spirit of progressive understanding and mutual enjoyment. The new dormitory for women, the magnificent gymnasium, work beginning on the new medical school, are features of the campus which you will remember as marking your graduating year. Fine athletic relations, stimulated by a wholesome program of physical education, the enriching and deepening of the General College's program, and the special programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, the strengthening of departments, and the expanding influence of the Graduate School and the professional schools, are landmarks in the intellectual life of the University which you will remember well. And, above all, student self-development, self-government, and self-expression in terms of spiritual and rational control are in a healthy state in keeping with the traditions of the University and by reason of your vital participation in them. I hope that, in addition to your memories of your personal experience here, you will keep before you the idea of an institution constantly striving to be an honest place of learning, a stimulating place of thought, and an inspiring place of complete personal and spiritual development.

I feel quite sure that you have profited by your stay in the University in terms of intellectual, professional, and practical growth, and I am sure that the University has profited by your residence here, but I think, above all things, the University is something to be enjoyed with cleanness, fineness, and zest while we are in that privileged class of her undergraduates, and to be remembered with affection, loyalty, and high spiritual commitment after graduation.

The fellowship of Carolina is fellowship in a beautiful place, in beautiful human associations, and in an ideal which transcends its past of glorious history and its present of joyous achievement. I hope that you have found what all of us find here—a reasonable inspiration and satisfaction each day—but I hope you leave not completely satisfied but hungry for a more complete realization of the spirit that is in the University, and I hope you have committed yourself with the University to the unending search for the realization of its highest ideal.

Affectionately yours,

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

The College of Arts and Sciences is the administrative unit of the University which confers the degrees, A.B.; A.B. in Journalism; A.B. in Law; B.S. in Chemistry; B.S. in Geology; B.S. in Physics; B.S. in Medicine. This may make it appear that the college is a degree mill, but such is not the case. While the officers of the College may be occupied more in connection with the students who are seeking degrees with others, we do not consider the presence of a fairly large number of students who are not working for degrees at all as undesirable in any sense; we welcome them and try to place the facilities of the University at their disposal. So long as life in the United States is what it is, we encourage young people to take degrees when possible and try to arrange the requirements with a view to a good education of the formal kind.

It might be of interest to record here the number of those who are applicants for the various degrees in June 1938 or June 1939. There are about 730 students in the College at the present time, divided as follows: Candidates for B.S. in Chemistry, 38; for B.S. in Geology, 8; for B.S. in Physics, 3; for B.S. in Medicine, 16; for A.B. LL.B., 26; for A.B. with major in Chemistry, 68; Economics, 32; Sociology, 60; Physical Education, 19; Zoology, 42; History, 47; Political Science, 58; A.B. in Journalism, 65;

DEAN A. W. HOBBS

Mathematics, 16; English, 64; Physics, 3; French, 14; Psychology, 6; Dramatic Art, 22; Geology, 4; Fine Arts, 4; Music, 8; Philosophy, 5; Comparative Literature, 1; Rural Economics, 2; Botany, 3; Latin, 2; unclassified, about 200. Among the unclassified are several special students, candidates for no degree; Pre-Medical, Pre-Law, and Pre-Dental, not expecting to take any degree; students who have not yet decided upon a major.

The numbers in the different majors and in the different degree curriculums change from year to year, and all Departments have a great many students who take courses as electives. It appears that more and more students, expecting to enter Professional Schools, take a regular four year program and receive the A.B. degree with an appropriate major, Zoology or Chemistry for Medicine, History, Political Science, or English for Law, and so on. This is no doubt due to the tightening up of standards with the Professional Schools.

Properly, the College of Arts and Sciences is the undergraduate non-professional part of the University. It is a collection of men who are seeking to expand knowledge in the several subjects and to introduce students to the search for truth. The result is far from satisfactory for a number of reasons. American students spend more time trying to avoid learning than they do in trying to get it, which introduces the peculiarities common to all colleges and universities in the country, namely the excessive extra-curricular activity. Most students get the notion that these activities are actually of permanent value, beyond anything else they get from college, due to the fact that they do not get that which the colleges are operated for. Not knowing what it is all about, they seize upon other things from which they do get something definite, though it is not at all what the faculty is collected for, nor for which the expensive equipment is bought. On the other hand, there are enough students who do get some real education, and enough Professors who turn out valuable research, to justify a large number of educational institutions. In a Democracy we have to be content with a constant state of mediocrity, but we hope, an improving one. We prefer this to the more clipped and furbished civilizations based upon autocracy. Our goal is to bring about a condition under which all young people will have the proper training and environment to induce them to live intelligently and happily on a high plane.

GENERAL COLLEGE

DEAN C. P. SPRUILL

The General College began the year 1937-38 with 1,412 students, 720 freshmen and 692 sophomores.

For the first time during the life of this college the orientation of freshmen was completely planned and administered by fifty upper-classmen under the joint chairmanship of the President of the Student Body and the President of the Senior Class. By careful preparation and organized work, this group helped the entering class to make the adjustments required by life in Chapel Hill. The culminating event of the orientation period was an unusually clear and impressive interpretation of the opportunities and obligations of student government. President Graham was the speaker. Immediately after his address the freshmen met with small groups of upper-classmen for discussion and voluntary, individual pledges of support of responsible student self-government.

The programs of study continue to serve the needs of different groups of students. The small proportion of an entering class that pushes on to graduation is a serious reminder that continuous improvement of the content and the circumstances of our offerings must be attempted. The purposes of these offerings during the first two years are:

- (1) to promote a constructive experience in the broad learning and critical understanding which contribute to personal achievement and civic responsibility, (2) to enable each student to test his aptitudes and develop his interests, and (3) to start preparation for specialized training in college and professional schools. With these purposes in view the University Administration tries systematically and vigorously to discover, encourage, and advance good teaching. Undismayed by the difficulty of defining this process, the Administration intends to carry on the deliberate effort to multiply in Chapel Hill the teachers who quicken the intelligence, elevate the imagination, and fill the memories of undergraduates. Of the effects of this undertaking seniors will be the best judges now and in the years to come.

The active administration of the General College is the responsibility of a staff of ten faculty advisers. Each adviser serves as the dean of his group of students. From the time of admission until his junior year, each student is associated with one adviser who attempts to make available and to consider with the student all relevant information in helping him to make academic and personal decisions. Through this association, the adviser helps to individualize and humanize the student's participation in the life of the university.

THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

The School of Commerce is the expression of the University's desire to serve the large percentage of young people who will go into some phase of business activity, but who cannot spend more than four years in preparation for such a career. Recognizing the need of a general understanding of our complex modern civilization as a basis of a happy and effective life, the first two years of the course of study given in the General College emphasize the broad cultural aspects of education. The last two years given in the School of Commerce are devoted primarily to the development of an understanding of the principles and procedures of modern business. The teaching policy of the School assumes that training for business should consist not only of a knowledge of the organization and methods of the most important fields of business activity, but in addition should develop an understanding of the problems and larger relationships of the economic system as a whole. In the attempt to give the student a practical basis for his life, care is taken that he shall not lose sight of his social obligations or his cultural needs.

The Credo of the School is stated as follows:

We believe that eliminating waste, releasing new energies, and organizing more effectively in our economic life, will reduce the burden of humanity, raise the standards of well-being, lay the basis for finer and more abounding cultural agencies, and bring the race within reach of enlarged and enriched opportunity. Business then takes its place as one of the great avenues of consecration to the common weal; and statesmanlike leadership and achievement in this field are rich in human benefaction.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

The graduate school, ideally considered, is a group of qualified teachers and students applying themselves in freedom and with the necessary library and laboratory resources to the problems that interest them. It has a province peculiar to itself in the investigation, discovery, and application of truth. According to tradition, this search for truth has been incessant and should be continuous. In this work the school entertains the ideal of excellence as a rule of practice. This sort of activity has been and is a part of civilization. It is perhaps the verifiable way of progress. It occurs outside as well as in graduate schools; but the schools are formally organized educational agencies for this purpose. As an educational agency, the school is functionally interested in the materials of knowledge; it is concerned with that verification of that knowledge on evidence and with the expansion of it by discovery. In the conscientious performance of this duty is to be found the surest justification of the university as distinguished from the college.

The school seeks, through specialized training and investigation, to render a service to education and the professions, particularly law, medicine, engineering, and pharmacy; to business, industry, agriculture, and pure and applied science; to government, citizenship, and administration; to art and culture; and to society and human relations. Specialized knowledge and technical mastery of a subject are firmly established in social responsibility. The graduate school in its conviction of the educational necessity of the history and theory of a subject, sometimes studied for their own sake, is not indifferent to application. Perhaps all advanced teaching and study, whether in the languages and arts or in science, involves a certain element of technological skill. From the viewpoint of the graduate school such skill is a proper by-product, but is neither a primary nor an exclusive aim to be attained. Good teaching and scholarly research are interdependent processes, whereby skill in communicating knowledge is accompanied by the spirit and practice of inquiry into the soundness of the knowledge imparted. The teaching of truth is not safely to be separated from the investigation of the evidential supports of truth. In response to the many social needs and pressures, some graduate schools have placed an emphasis, even an exclusive emphasis, on one or the other—teaching or research—and have organized formal curricula to that end. Others have steadfastly held to the union of the two. This is our faith at the University of North Carolina.

SCHOOL OF LAW

The School of Law occupies Manning Hall, named for John Manning, from 1881 to 1899 a distinguished professor in the School. The building was erected in 1923 and besides being modern and commodious, is particularly notable for beauty of design.

The law school, which developed into the School of Law of the University, was founded in 1843 at Chapel Hill as a private school by William H. Battle, then a judge of the Superior Court, later a justice of the Supreme Court of the State. In 1845 Judge Battle was made Professor of Law in the University, and it was provided that the degree of Bachelor of Laws should be conferred on those completing the prescribed two-year course. From the records of the University, however, it seems that few degrees were actually conferred. For a long time the school maintained a certain independence of the University. The professor of law received no salary, though he enjoyed the fees from his classes. The students were not entirely subject to the discipline of the University.

This was the position of the school from its formation until 1899, a period which covered the professorships of Judge Battle who retired in 1879; two years when the law classes were conducted by Kemp P. Battle, then President of the University; and the professorship of John Manning, elected 1881, died 1899. In 1899 the school was completely incorporated into the University, with the late James C. MacRae, previously a justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, as the first Dean of the School of Law.

The School of Law having complied in full with the requirements set up by the American Bar Association has been classed as an "approved law school".

The School of Law is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, an association composed of the leading law schools in the United States.

A carefully compiled list of approved law schools, whose credits are acceptable as evidence of due preparation for the New York Bar Examinations, is published by the University of the State of New York. The School of Law is accredited in this list for the full three years' work.

DEAN W. DEB. MACNIDER

CALDWELL HALL

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

During the last few months the Medical School has been in the process of a rather unusual development, both physically and in terms of its personnel.

As a result of the thoughtful appropriation by the recent legislature for the Medical School building and an addition to the University Infirmary, which in turn enabled the University authorities to secure a P.W.A. grant, the physical plant of the Medical School and the Division of Public Health finds itself in a state of rapid and satisfactory expansion. The sum of $410,900.00 enables the erection of a modern, adequately equipped laboratory building for the purpose of teaching the fundamental medical sciences and for the development of the Division of Public Health of the Medical School. This building will be placed as a key building on a large plateau in a southwesterly direction from the University Library, which will make possible in the future the development in this location of other buildings of a medical order. The addition to the University Infirmary not only enables this institution to work more effectively for the care of the University students, certain faculty members and secretarial help in the University, but it permits the development of a charity clinic, in which clinic a course for medical students of the first order will be given in Physical Diagnosis.

The expansion of the various departments of the Medical School by acquiring additional instructors has been most gratifying and constitutes the heart of the medical organization of the University. One or more additions in terms of instructors have been made to each of the seven departments of the Medical School. These instructors have been selected on the basis of their training as reflected in their ability to teach and to conduct and direct scientific research of a medical and biological nature. During the past few months there have been added to the medical faculty twelve instructors and technical assistants. In addition a new Department of Biological Chemistry has been established and developed in terms of personnel and equipment.

THE SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

Four thousand years of recorded history lie back of the practice of pharmacy. The evolutionary changes that have occurred in its methods during this period are interesting indeed, but their main importance concerns the orderly development of an applied science out of a skillful art. The pharmacy of today begins in the collection of crude medicinal material and carries on to its refinement, its manufacture, and its varied forms of distribution. Ordinarily one thinks of pharmacy only in terms of its final agent, the retail druggist, but actually every part of the work is approximately co-equal in importance, exactness, and scientific character.

In former times a pharmacist gained most of his knowledge from a preceptorial or apprentice form of training. As the art grew into a science, however, and as the entire field of medicine progressed, it became necessary that organized educational processes be employed. Accordingly, schools of pharmacy were established. Three general aims are sought by these schools: To educate their students in such a way as to make them actively conscious of the social obligations of citizenship; to stimulate their interest in the pathological aspects of community life; and to train them for efficient practice in one or the other of the several specialized forms of endeavor that collectively constitute the science of pharmacy. It is agreed that this educational process cannot be completed in even a minimal way in less than four years, since the foundation course must include a proper distribution of cultural, basic, and applied subject matter. Graduate study is increasing rapidly. The School of Pharmacy in this University, now in its forty-first year of consecutive service, subscribes to such a program. Two degrees are offered, S.B. Pharmacy, and M.S. Pharmacy.

All students register alike for the first two years of the curriculum. In the third year, however, elective specialization begins in order that graduates may be prepared for either of three forms of pharmaceutical endeavor.

The present School of Pharmacy was established in 1897 as the result of a petition addressed to President Alderman by the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, the members of which promised their active support and cooperation. In response to this request, the school was initiated, and the late Edward Vernon Howell was secured as dean and professor. (Previously pharmaceutical courses with degree offerings had been conducted by two professors in the local School of Medicine.) The School has been housed successively in the New West building (1897-1912); Person Hall (1912-1925); and in Howell Hall (1925 to date). Originally the length of study was two years. In 1925 the time was increased to three years, and in 1932 to four years.

The School holds membership in the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy, while its graduates are eligible for license by examination in all states. Incidentally, the School has been honored in supplying two vice-presidents and one president of the above-named organization since 1925.

From 1897 through June of 1937, the School of Pharmacy had matriculated 2,540 students. Of this number 1,450 were different students and 486 were graduated.

SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE

Courses in Library Science at the University of North Carolina were begun in 1904. The School of Library Science, offering a one-year curriculum leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Library Science, was established in 1931, as a result of a gift from the Carnegie Corporation. It was given a suite consisting of lecture room, combination library and study room, and offices on the top floor of the Library. The School opened with a faculty of three full-time members and three part-time members, and a student body of thirty-six, seven of whom were part-time students chiefly from the University Library Staff. The School belongs to the Division of The Library and Library School.

Beginning in 1935, the School offers its regular one-year curriculum through consecutive summer sessions. Two quarters' work is offered each summer and the courses are so rotated that new students may enter any summer and a student may complete the work in three summers of two terms each. The first Summer Session class, numbering twelve, was graduated in 1937. Because of the fact that two quarters' work is offered simultaneously and because special students are admitted to certain courses, the summer session enrollment is by far the largest of the year, taxing to their utmost the quarters of the School.

In general the School's admission requirements are a bachelor's degree from an approved college; evidence of a well-rounded choice of undergraduate courses; and a knowledge of at least two foreign languages. Training is given for various types of positions in different kinds of libraries. The courses are supplemented by a trip in the third quarter to visit and observe the work of a number of libraries in Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, and New York.

The alumni now number one hundred and fifty-two. They are located in libraries in twenty-four states and the District of Columbia. The largest number, however, fifty-six, or 37 per cent of the total, are in university, college, public, and school libraries in North Carolina. Outside the state they are working in such different libraries as the New York Public Library; the special library of the Eli Lilly Company; the University of Cincinnati Library; the Fitchburg, Massachusetts, Public Library; and the Richmond, Virginia, High School Library. The positions held by alumni include those of chief librarian, reference assistant, cataloger, assistant in library work with children, in charge of periodicals and binding, a university departmental librarian, and chief of a circulation department.

The School of Library Science is a member of the Association of American Library Schools and is one of the twenty-seven library schools accredited by the American Library Association. Four of these Schools are in the Southeast.

GLEN HAYDEN

HILL MUSIC HALL

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

The Department of Music carries out a diversified program in fulfilling its function in the University. The general purposes of the undergraduate courses may be summarized as follows: (a) to give the student electing music as his chief interest a thorough training in the practical, theoretical, and historical aspects of the subject as a part of the general liberal arts curriculum for the A.B. degree; (b) to give the student interested in the scholarly aspects of music the basic training necessary for successful graduate work in Musicology; (c) to afford students in other departments the opportunity to take music as an elective.

Students who take Music as the major subject modify the regular program for the first two years in order to begin Music in their freshman year, but they do complete the General College program or its equivalent before graduation. While all these students must meet certain minimum requirements in practical, theoretical, and historical work, the program in music is nevertheless sufficiently flexible for the student to develop his special talents through intensive work in the field of his choice. Thus while some students specialize in performance looking forward to a concert career, others devote more time to composition and orchestration, while others prepare to teach music in the public schools. Still others continue with graduate studies or go into some more specialized field such as radio work or musical criticism.

The Department of Music probably reaches the largest number of students through its musical organizations: the band, orchestra, glee clubs, and other ensemble groups. The University Band, under the leadership of Professor Earl A. Slocum, has made an enviable reputation for itself not only through its excellent work at football games and other athletic events, but also through its concerts given throughout the state and on many public occasions of the University, especially during Commencement Week. The University Orchestra, Professor B. F. Swalin, conductor, rehearses weekly and appears in concert from time to time throughout the college year. Members of the orchestra assist in providing music upon many occasions such as Playmaker productions, concerts of the Chapel Hill Choral Club, and student recitals. The University Glee Clubs, directed by Professor John E. Toms, are carrying on a fine tradition of vocal performance for which the University has long been distinguished. The Department of Music also sponsors the Chapel Hill Choral Club, which for many years has given performances of important choral works, and the Alpha Rho chapter of Phi Mu Alpha (Sinfonia) national honorary musical fraternity which assists materially in spreading an interest in music among the students of the University. Many students, in addition to participating in one or more of the musical organizations, make extensive use of the departmental collection of records, scores, and books on music, which are available throughout the day.

The Hill Music Building is the center of most of the musical activities on the campus. In addition to offices, studios, and classrooms, the building provides a number of smaller rooms for individual practice and for listening to phonograph records. The auditorium, seating eight hundred people, is the home of recitals and concerts by faculty members, students in the department of music, and visiting artists. Recitals on the four manual concert organ are given from time to time by Professor Jan Philip Schinhan.

Thus the Department of Music through its courses, its organizations, its concerts, its library and other facilities and activities is attempting to bring something into the experience of every student of the University that will be of permanent value to him by helping to open the doors to a more abundant life.

PLAYMAKER BUILDING

F. H. KOCH

DEPARTMENT OF DRAMA

Twenty years ago at the University of North Carolina The Carolina Playmakers was founded, and the organization began its work toward a native American drama. Dramatic Art was an innovation in the University curriculum in 1907, and the establishment of The Playmakers marked the sowing of new ground in the educational field. The idea has grown with the years and an ever-increasing number of students of drama has necessitated many additions to the teaching staff. That the idea is now firmly rooted in the life of the University and the State is evidenced by the inauguration in 1936 of a Department of Dramatic Art, headed by Dr. Frederick H. Koch, founder of the Playmakers, with a distinguished faculty of theatre workers trained in the theory and practice of all the arts of the theatre.

The Department of Dramatic Art offers degrees on both the graduate and undergraduate level, and a candidate for a master's degree may submit an original full-length play in lieu of the traditional thesis. Courses in Dramatic Literature, Playwriting, Directing, Acting, Scenery, Lighting, Costuming and Speech are designed to give the student a comprehensive knowledge of all phases of theatre work. The Playmakers Theatre and Scene Shop offer ample opportunity for the student to test theory with practice, in both experimental and public productions.

Two hundred and sixty-five different players and technicians took an active part in The Playmaker productions last season. Forty-four different performances of public, experimental and tour bills were given, for which twenty-three new stage settings were built. Twenty-seven new plays, written in the Playwriting course, were given experimental and public production, directed by student directors. In addition to these, one original full-length student play and four by professional playwrights and an elaborate outdoor production in the Forest Theatre were included in the year's program.

The Carolina Play-Book, the dramatic periodical of The Carolina Playmakers, is devoted to the making of a native American drama. It is now in its tenth year and had the distinction of being one of only three theatre publications included in the International Exhibit of Periodicals at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, the other two being Stage and Theatre Arts Monthly.

Four volumes of Carolina Folk Plays have already been published and an anthology of American Folk Plays written by student playwrights representing different sections of the country. Also a book of Mexican Folk Plays written in Dr. Koch's playwriting course by Josephina Niggli of Monterey, Mexico, will be published soon.

Through the Carolina Dramatic Association and The Bureau of Community Drama, the Department is able to assist high schools, community groups, little theatres and colleges throughout the state in the selection and production of plays. This extension work has come to be more and more in demand with the development of a widespread interest in a people's theatre.

ALUMNI

Each year by long standing custom certain individuals have been chosen to represent in the student year-book the large alumni group. These graduates and former students have been selected from many fields of endeavor with a view of making representative each year's selection. In no sense does the list of a single year represent a complete honor roll of University alumni. Rather the selections of persons to occupy space on the pages are intended to be symbolic of the great contribution of University alumni in many fields of public and private enterprise. In honoring those selected this year the loyalty and achievement of many other alumni is equally recognized and honored.—J. M. S.

ALUMNI

Located at Chapel Hill in the Carolina Inn, which as an alumni club-house and community "parlor" was the gift of the John Sprunt Hill family of Durham to the University, is the Central Alumni Office of the General Alumni Association.

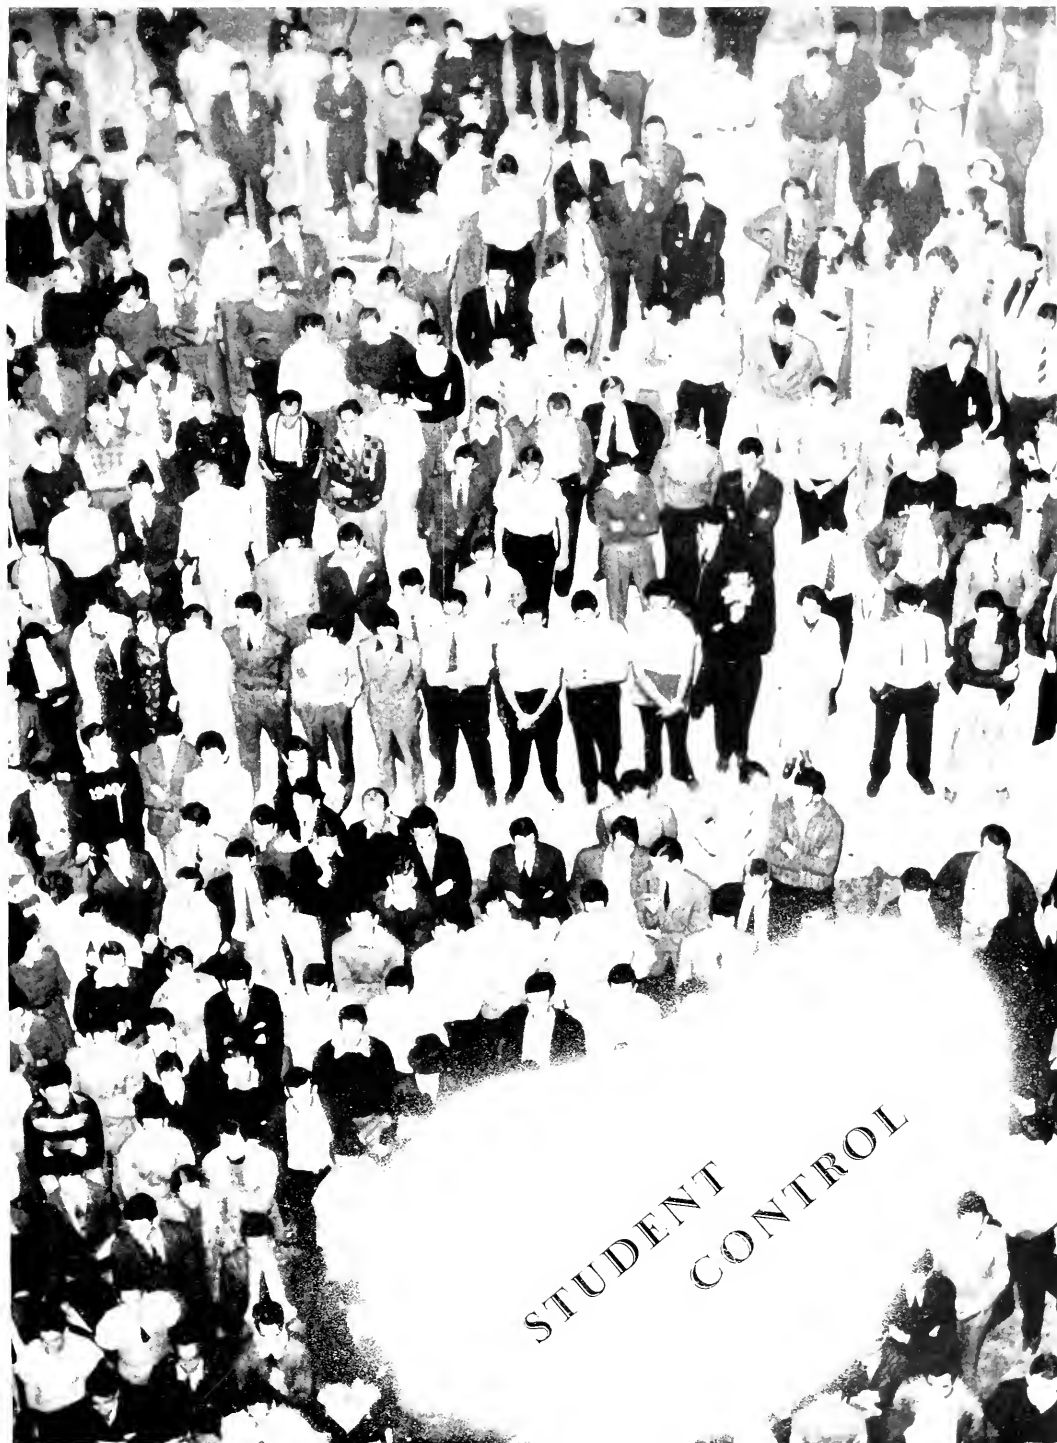

The Association is an all-University organization, embracing in its membership graduates and former students ranging in classes from the oldest alumnus to the youngest graduate. The Association was formed in 1843. Through its Central Office, its local alumni clubs, its permanently organized classes, its General Assembly, and its "Alumni Review," the Association endeavors to maintain a program making it easy for the 22,000 living alumni to continue their relationship with Alma Mater.

In its Alumni Office the Association maintains records of all alumni, including up-to-date addresses, vital statistics, occupations, and other memorabilia. The Association is alert in promoting such public occasions as commencement, homecomings, and University Day. The Central Office carries on correspondence with thousands of alumni, complying with requests ranging from personal questions to projects concerning the entire University.

Through the columns of "The Alumni Review"—the official magazine—alumni members are enabled to keep up with affairs in Chapel Hill and in the big alumni family. General in its service to the University and personal in its relationship to the alumni, the Alumni Association endeavors to link the Past with the Present for the Future of Alma Mater.

Any graduate or former student is eligible for membership in the Association. Only those who belong to the Association participate in its elections and receive its magazine.

Student self-government at the University of North Carolina, once regarded as a privilege granted by the faculty, has now come to be looked upon as the exercising of a fundamental right inherently belonging to individuals in a democratic society. Emphasis placed on individual self-control has led us to place a premium on freedom at the expense of the responsibility to the social standards which must accompany that freedom. Such is the contemporary problem of student government at Carolina.

The efforts necessary in the solving of this problem, the technique and difficulties encountered in carrying out the functions of the governmental set-up are educational for those who participate in the process. And the growing realization by all students of the individual and social obligations imposed by the fundamental principle of self-government, honesty, is definitely self-educational.

The powers and functions of student government have grown gradually and irregularly in mushroom fashion over many years. At present, the executive agency of the campus, the Student Council, divides its responsibility with several subsidiary groups. Inter-fraternity and inter-dormitory councils regulate campus life in their respective fields according to the Campus Code, a principle of gentlemanly conduct. Jurisdiction in the field of campus activities is implemented by elected supervisory boards which govern the spending of self-imposed fees for publications, entertainments, debating and a student union.

Assisting the Student Council in its administration of the Honor System are four elected class councils whose function it is to decide guilt or innocence in cases where violation of the honor principle is charged. The final decision of corrective or punitive sentence is left to the Student Council, if guilt has been found by the class council.

This division of responsibility lends to greater participation and training in leadership. It also leaves the Student Council freer for constructive efforts in the interests of a more efficient and, at the same time, more democratic government. The principle of self-education through freedom with responsibility is implemented by such decentralization and individual concern for effective government.

Supervising the technical and financial management of the four campus publications, the Publications Union Board attempts to see that each dollar of the compulsory publications tax levied on every student is spent where it will buy the most.

The Board selects business managers for "The Daily Tar Heel," "Buccaneer," "Magazine," and "Yackety Yack," as well as a circulation manager and a managing editor for the "Tar Heel".

Each year three students are elected to the Board by the student body for a one-year term. Two faculty members are appointed for two-year terms by the Dean of Administration. There is a salaried technical adviser, appointed by the University Administration and serving during good behavior. This adviser sits with the Board, acts as an agent of the Board, but may not vote.

Over the editorial policy of the four publications, the Publications Union Board attempts no control.

INTER-DORMITORY COUNCIL

McFayden, W. E. Williams, Charles Evans, R. N. Watson, David Oglesby.

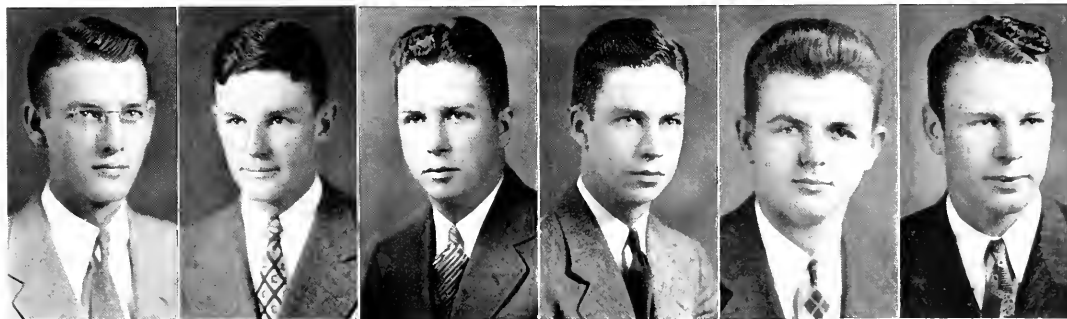

The Inter-Dormitory Council was reestablished in 1934 for the purpose of establishing better intra-dormitory relations and the facilitating of inter-dormitory rules and regulations. To complete the reorganization, a constitution was composed in 1936. Today, it stands among the most powerful organizations of student control.

The Council is composed of the individual councils of each dormitory. These individual councils, in turn, are composed of a president, vice-president, councilmen, and athletic director. These individual councils regulate order and conduct within their particular dormitories and promote social functions, dormitory projects, and intra-mural athletics. Cases of dormitory disorder or misconduct are first tried by the council of the dormitory in which it occurred. In cases where the decision of this council is not satisfactory to the resident being tried, the case is referred to the Council of Dormitory Presidents. After a case has been tried by the Council of Presidents it may be carried to the Student Council for final decision. The powers of the Council of Presidents are limited to ousting a man from the dormitory and preventing his ever rooming in another dormitory, or to recommend to the Student Council that he be suspended from school.

The officers of the Inter-Dormitory Council are elected by popular vote at the end of the Spring quarter by the outgoing members. They are: president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. There is also a man appointed by the Dean of Students who acts as advisor to the Council at its meetings.

The Council has sought for dormitory improvement, both in the sense of physical plants and social recognition on the campus. Within the next few years the Council hopes to make the dormitory the best and the most wholesome place on the campus in which to live.

THE STUDENT UNION

You may remember the Graham Memorial after you have been graduated as a place bustling with activity, or you may not recollect any more about it except the eight white columns in front.

The students who do take full advantage of the Graham Memorial facilities are the ones who get the most out of their college life. The student who hasn't attended a meeting in one of the rooms, who hasn't attended a social or banquet on the second floor, who hasn't loitered or read in the lounge, who hasn't bowled or played pool in the game rooms, who hasn't eaten in the Grill, who hasn't had his hair cut in the barber shop, or who hasn't called at the "Tar Heel" circulation office to find why his paper hasn't been delivered, has not really been a part of college life in Chapel Hill, and is headed for everlasting damnation for all I care.

It has come to be recognized and even admitted by some pedagogues that a Student Union, housing all sorts of recreational facilities, is a regular part of University life. Play time is just as important a part of student life as the working hours and should be just as carefully regulated. We hope you won't remember the Graham Memorial as a loafing center, but as the place you put in some of your leisure hours before tackling the harder chores.

Edward Kidder Graham, the former President of the University for whom this building is named, dreamed of a student center where all student activities are together and where after classes the students can meet for recreation and rest.

Ways and means of encouraging a student body of more than three thousand to use their Student Union is not so easy. You can't say "so and so is going to happen at Graham Memorial," and then expect everybody to attend. As a matter of fact if you say it that way, it might not even make the back pages of the "Daily Tar Heel." It has therefore been the policy of the Graham Memorial Director to give a diversified program of entertainment, recreation, and service to the students; and the most effective way to do it was by publicity. Some of the publicity was shocking. Some of it was semi-sensational, but it had the desired results, because the students came to the Graham Memorial and enjoyed themselves, many of them not knowing that they had been tricked into getting for themselves the necessary amount of recreation that is good for the physical, and mental well-being of a Carolina student.

To sound campus opinion and to give intelligent advice on questions of campus-wide concern are the functions of the Campus Cabinet. It partly fills the need that exists for legislation by a representative group of students; but it might be termed opportunistic in function, for it is called into session only when issues of general interest are pressing for a solution. Through discussion of these, it may advise the Student Council and stimulate or hinder the development of projects sponsored by individual groups. Such questions as, a proposed student theatre, changes in Council rulings, and the University athletic policy, are considered.

The Cabinet is composed of two groups approximating fifty student leaders appointed by the president of the student body, who is chairman. Its nucleus is made up of the Student Council and the three upper class honor councils, members of these giving the Cabinet an element of popular representation. In addition to these, the executives of the leading campus organizations are appointed, plus several students at large. In this way a not unwieldy group is formed, which may both represent and direct campus opinion.

BILL McLEAN: When the P. U. board appointed Bill to succeed Eli Joyner as business manager of The Daily Tar Heel, everyone knew he would have to go mighty fast to keep pace with his predecessor. Bill not only kept up to Eli's standard, but he set a new and faster pace. Always on the job, he organized an efficient and cooperative staff. He deserves the title: "Best business man on the campus."

This task falls to the lot of the Division Heads and their respective helpers. During the preceding year these men have been unusually efficient and dependable in the carrying out of their responsibilities. For such effective work the editor wishes to thank each member of the editorial staff without whom this book would never get out of its preliminary stages.

We also wish to thank Mr. Kenneth Whitsett of the Pictorial Engraving Company for the splendid art work and also for many suggestions relating to the general plan of this book. Mr. Frank Fleming of the Lassiter Press has superintended the printing of this Yackety Yack.

In a student body as large as Carolina's, general convocations are rare occurrences and special group meetings never appeal to the entire campus citizenry. Actually it is the student newspaper, as it slides under every student's door each morning with its facts and opinions, that keeps the campus knit together and continuously aware of itself.

In order to make the "Daily Tar Heel" as effective a focus of "the campus personality" as possible, the current administration set out to see that the news coverage included considerably more than the ordinary run of dull, but necessary, bulletins and schedules. As well as being accurate, the paper was to be interesting, to contain pigment, a spark of life, readability. The "Tar Heel" was going to be produced for the student readers rather than for the files of the library.

The editorial policy of the paper has been one of leisurely, but thorough, examination of the campus problems. There have been few instances of "superimposed" crusading, the practice of the paper being to outline the problem, clarify student thinking, and encourage, in the end, whatever genuine student action might be so generated.

The "Daily Tar Heel" has long been proud of its freedom from faculty control of any sort, and proud, as well, of the degree of organizational efficiency which permits a staff of its size and undergraduate sort to put out the "only college daily in the South" on a midnight deadline.

FONVILLE

With its eight issues during the past school year, the "Carolina Buccaneer" has attempted to entertain and enlighten, as it were, the youth of today. The field for the extraction and presentation of material has necessarily been confined to the campus. Not to have done this would have meant competition with nationally recognized comic magazines. Any such attempt would have been useless and readily recognized as a poor imitation. In spite of a fixed locality and limited funds, the personnel has succeeded in its aim—to publish a light and readable humor magazine, yet one that is snappy and clean.

At the beginning of the year a new arrangement of officers was set up, whereby responsibility was more evenly divided. The policies of the magazine as a whole and for each issue were in the hands of and controlled by a governing group. Frequent meetings made it possible for this governing group to make changes from issue to issue, so that, by the middle of the year an entirely different magazine was published monthly as to material and actual contents, but with the same balanced form.

If the publication has been successful over the past year, the credit must go to the members of the staff. Through their untiring efforts, inexhaustible interest, and competent cooperation, they have at least fulfilled their intentions. Before the year had passed its halfway mark the staff was composed of more than a few experienced and mature artists. Artists, not in their strictest sense, but artists in each of their fields. Cartoonists developed styles of their own and above all stuck to originality. Authors became adept at making their stories sparkle with lively humor. Photography was emphasized more than ever before, and photographers, induced to extend themselves, produced commendable results. The staff and the publication's many outside contributors are due all the thanks, for they are the ones that pooled their efforts in one common accord—to give the students a humor magazine for students.

LEWIS

Most college poets and short story writers live in El Dorado.

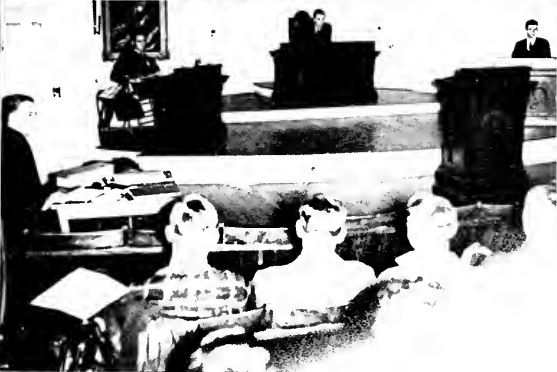

Perennially that truth flowers unpleasantly out of the pages of "creative" work published by the Magazine. Still the editorial we go on seeking El Dorado; and if along the way we find one or two emigrants from that country, or one or two exceptions to that rule of artistic nationality, the endless journey has not been entirely futile. This year we have published two or three sonnets with more than a rhyme scheme, and perhaps one short story vitalized by human validity. The college Muses have been as good as usual.

Competent non-creative writers live closer to home than El Dorado. The Magazine scored a mild scoop in the Hugo Black case, made a liberal gesture in publishing an article by three Nazi sympathizers, helped spread the Odum-Vance-Couch gospel in the South, and sought to be amusingly critical in such articles as "How to Make Phi Bete" and "Swing Lingo".

By expanding its book section to include a critical essay each month, the Magazine caught the attention (frequently contemptuous, but none the less unprecedented) of the haughty intellectuals in the Graduate Club. A new high in graduate contributors was registered, also, with a corresponding increase in maturity of tone.

Finally, the Magazine went a whole year without hearing mention of re-merger with the "Tar Heel". The gains initiated by Sugarman seem to have been consolidated by his successors.

DI SENATE

DIALECTIC SENATE

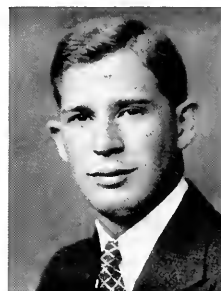

The Dialectic Senate was organized in 1795—the year of the opening of the University. Two months after the “Di” was organized the Philanthropic Assembly was formed by a group of revolting members thus giving the campus a Senate and a House for student government. For many years, membership in the “Di” and “Phi” was compulsory, and expulsion from one of the societies meant expulsion from school. At that time they were not only debating societies but also served as organizations of student government and instruction (the officers taught English composition to the Freshmen) as well. They also published the “University Magazine” and endowed the library.

In recent years, the activities of the Senate have been confined usually to discussion and deliberation of topics of campus-wide, state-wide, and world-wide importance.

Occasionally, action has been taken for the betterment of the campus, and each year the Senate has several socials.

The Society has offered in the past and continues to offer excellent training for leadership in public life.

In the spring of 1936, the Carolina Political Union was formed by a group of students interested in stimulating student thought on political and governmental affairs. They set out to do this by bringing to the campus outstanding speakers representing all sides of pertinent issues by conducting campus polls and open forums and in many ways which bring the nation's problems closer to the individual student.

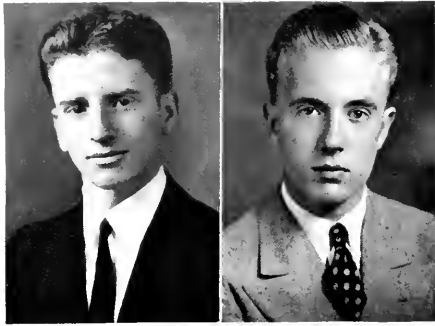

The Union is composed of twenty-five student members. Among the speakers brought this year were James Roosevelt, Ambassador William E. Dodd, Earl Browder, Tom M. Girdler, Ambassador A. A. Troyanovsky, Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff, Frank R. McNinch, and William Hard.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

UNIVERSITY CLUB

The University Club with a membership of forty members of the Junior Class representing every fraternity and every dormitory on the campus and with three representatives at large has a close contact with every phase of campus life—a relationship which the University Club peculiarly suited to carry on its wide activities.

The Club cooperates with all worthy student movements, endeavoring to make them a success and is associated especially with the General Alumni office and the Athletic Association.

The group tries to keep alive alumni interest and to create a demand for the University of North Carolina in prospective students. This is accomplished by radio programs which cover a portion of the entire South, appealing to both groups. The University Club has aided the University Alumni groups in holding informal meetings in several North Carolina cities.

The fourth phase of the Club's work concerns itself with the improvement of inter-school relations. The Club meets visiting athletic teams, entertaining them during their stay on the campus, in an attempt to create goodwill between the schools.

In the fall of '33 our present Director, Mr. Earl A. Stocum, came to us from Greensboro. At that time the only school-owned instruments were a few large horns and bass drum, to which was added the unusual combination of a piccolo and a glockenspiel. With these as tools the band forged ahead to be awarded the present colorful uniforms in 1935 by the Athletic Association. Furthermore, this year new basses, baritones, and bassoons were added as the joint gifts of Music and Athletic Departments. The band has increased in size from 60 in '33 to 85 this year. Next year it is hoped that we will have two bands to which entrance is permitted only after careful reading and performance tests.

Now the band no longer confines itself to the spirited moments of football or baseball, but plays its concerts in auditoriums where even the drop of a pin would be conspicuous, not to mention the dropping of a couple of notes. Last year it played twenty-six formal concerts, and this year was off to a big start by featuring in the state music teachers' meeting at Greensboro last October.

Last year the Band set a new record for travel with a whirlwind week-end at N. Y. U. and next year they hope to play the funeral hymn for Fordham. It's a long step from the little group of 1903. From the best in Orange County to the best in the nation—that's its ambition.

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION COMMITTEE

To the Freshman Orientation Committee is entrusted the all-important task of helping the new men to adjust themselves as promptly as possible to the changes and novelties of college life.

This year, under the leadership of Joe Patterson and Bob Magill, the Committee staged its most complete and successful program since its beginning. During the three-day period before the opening of Fall classes, each member of the Committee was busy holding conferences with his assigned group of some dozen freshmen, individually and collectively, to assist them in solving individual problems in getting started in the University, to encourage the proper attitude towards the school, its activities, and its traditions, and to introduce them informally to the Honor System and the Campus Code. The Committee-man's role of adviser has in many cases continued long after the formal ending of the Freshman Orientation period.

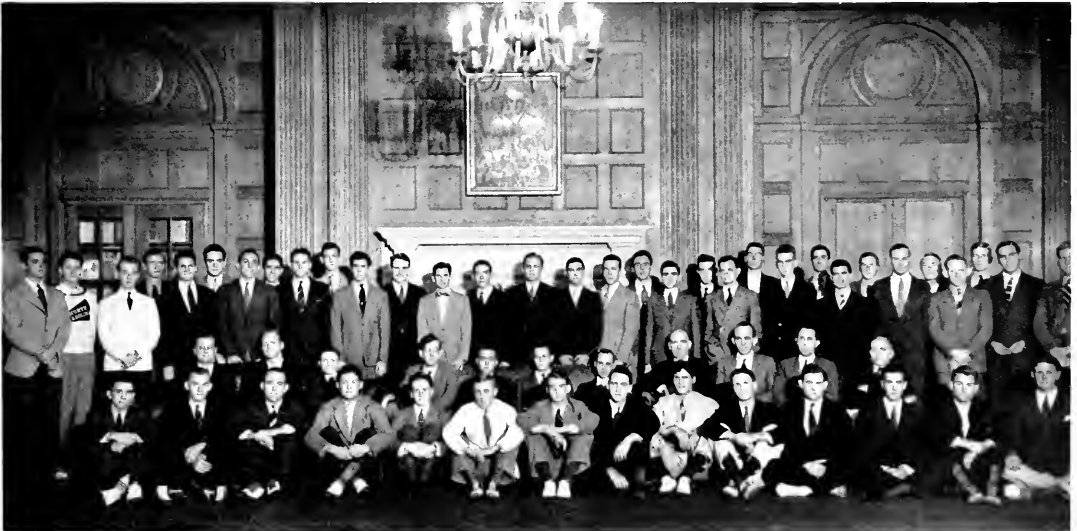

The faculty advisers to the freshmen have been high in their praises of the Committee's whole-hearted interest and cooperation.

The history of women students at Chapel Hill has been a comparatively short one though a very commendable one. Not until 1897 did the trustees permit the enrollment of women students in the University, and then only graduates were considered. In 1898 the first degree to a woman was awarded.

Since that time the number of women on the Hill has increased and now there are more than 300 women students enrolled.

For a time freshmen and sophomores were allowed. Now, however, juniors, seniors and graduates only are accepted with the exception of the Pharmacy School which allows women to register in its first two years as well as in the advanced classes.

In the fall seven sports were offered to the girls—bowling, hockey, tennis, archery, pingpong, horseback riding, and golf. Tournaments were conducted in most of these activities and lay girls participated in the various sports.

CO-ED GOLF

During the winter quarter a class in fencing was begun. Managed by "Tud" Mease it proved quite popular. Basketball was placed among the sports offered and those sports which were played out of doors were discontinued.

The spring quarter we think will be the most successful and interesting quarter in co-ed sports. The new gym promises to be the center of attraction, for swimming will be offered to the co-eds for the first time. Monograms will be awarded at the end of the quarter to those girls excelling in various sports. This year a monogram club for girls was organized and it has created quite a bit of interest among the girls. Keys were presented council members for the first time.

One of the prides of the Y. W. C. A. is the "bull-sessions" that are sponsored jointly with the Y. M. C. A. and held around the firesides of some of the University professors. Why these "bull-sessions"? The Christian associations feel that through discussions among students with some of the outstanding faculty members social problems and campus problems take on a life and interest not attained elsewhere.

This is one of the ways in which the Y. W. C. A. attempts to present and develop a religion that is alive, that has to do with the life of the students in relation to each other and to all people. By relation Christianity and social problems both are given vitality and strength.

The association as a whole seeks to understand student problems and the world community, while special work is done by the committees.

BARTOS CLEARS THE PATH FOR WATSON AGAINST SOUTH CAROLINA

FOOTBALL

Coach Ray Wolf's second year at Carolina saw the Tar Heels rank high in the nation's gridiron ratings as they won both the "Big Five" and Southern Conference titles undisputed. Only one game was dropped—that to Fordham by a 14-0 margin. Led by the finest pair of co-captains, Andy Bershak and Crowell Little, to ever grace the turf of Kenan Stadium, the Tar Heels were probably the best in the University's history.

Bershak, Little, Hank Bartos, Art Ditt, Elmer Wrenn, Tom Burnette, George Watson and others scored places on all types of mythical elevens, Bershak topping the group with his All American choice by several outstanding committees. To mention all the "stars" would be impossible and unfair to anyone left out for "all worked for one and one for all". A grand bunch of fellows; a grand team; something of which the University and student body could justly be proud: the Carolina football team of 1937.

NORTH CAROLINA 13, SOUTH CAROLINA 13

The opening of 1937 saw South Carolina hold the Tar Heels to a 13-13 stalemate on Kenan's gridiron. Carolina sent Tom Burnette over for the first touchdown early in the opening quarter, but a few minutes later Urban evened matters with a Gamecock six pointer. Co-captain Crowell Little scored in the second period and Burnette converted to give the Tar Heels a 13-6 lead, which was erased midway in the final stanza when Dearth took a pass and then place kicked the point to finish even-steps.

NORTH CAROLINA 20, N. C. STATE 0

Invading the lair of State's Wolfpack, the Tar Heels emerged with a 20-0 win. Little scampered over from the three-yard line, Burnette converted and later passed to Bershak for a second touchdown to give Carolina a 13-0 advantage at the half. Several Desperate attempts by Eddie Berlinski to score for State met ill fate. The final quarter saw Burnette race 24 yards and then boot the extra point to complete the scoring.

NORTH CAROLINA 19, N. Y. U. 6

Yankeeland's second invasion by the Tar Heels was even more successful than the first for this time they romped off with a 19-6 triumph. Little was the big scoring gun as he made all three touchdowns for the winners with Burnette adding the sole conversion. Both teams tallied in the first, but the recovery of a fumble by Co-captain Andy Bershak and Little's quick kicking led the way for additional scores in the third and fourth periods. N. Y. U. outgained the Tar Heels in yardage, but the latter's smart display of football netted the greater score and that's what they pay off on.

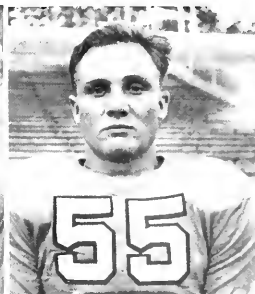

SLAGLE OPENS THE WAY FOR RADMAN AGAINST WAKE FOREST

NORTH CAROLINA 28, WAKE FOREST 0

The Tar Heels next defeated the Deacons 28-0 on the latter's field. With George Watson, Jack Kraynick, Wally Winborne and George Stirnweiss producing the six-pointers and Burnette adding three extras and Stirnweiss one, Carolina met little opposition as the second and third strings did most of the playing.

NORTH CAROLINA 13, TULANE 0

The Green Tide of Tulane surged down on Kenan Stadium before 21,000 Homecoming Day fans but could not reach touchdown shore and was receded 13-0. After a first period storm, Tulane was scored upon twice by George Watson in the second quarter to give Carolina a lead that was never endangered. Watson scored first on a double reverse and then took a pass from Little for the second. Burnette added the extra point. The victory wiped out 1936's loss and gave Carolina a two-one lead in the series.

NORTH CAROLINA 0, FORDHAM 14

Fordham handed Carolina its first and sole defeat of the year by a 14-0 count before 24,000 fans in Kenan Stadium. The Rams drove 88 yards in the first period, culminating with a Statue of Liberty play that saw Kazlo carry over for the score. Fortunato ended the touchdown making in the third period. Captain Druze made both placements. Despite its defeat, Carolina played a good game with the work of Bershak, Little, Watson, Stirnweiss, Burnette and Bartos always keeping them in the contest.

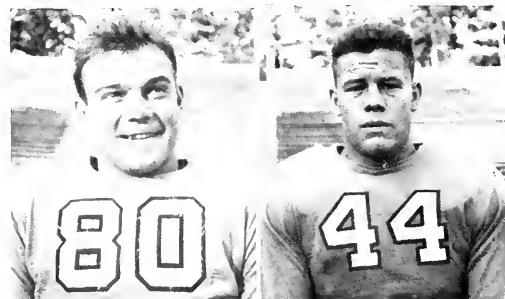

NORTH CAROLINA 26, DAVIDSON 0

The Tar Heels got back into winning form the following Saturday, Davidson being a 26-0 victim on its own field. Zan Carver's 66-yard touchdown dash and additional six-pointers by Stirnweiss, Kraynick and Watson provided an easy Carolina win. Burnette added the two placements.

Carolina tasted the sweetness of revenge on the memorable day of November 13 when it battered Wallace Wade's Duke eleven 14-6 before 43,000 fans in the Durham horseshoe. The Blue Devils got off to a 6-0 advantage when Hackney romped around end for 14 yards and a touchdown early in the first period.

After that Duke wasn't in the ball game. It never again threatened as Carolina battered it left and right all over the field. The Tar Heels went ahead in the second period, Little going off tackle for a touchdown and Burnette calmly converting. The second score was made from the nine-yard line in the fourth quarter, the Tar Heels "assuring" Duke of an attempted field goal and sucking the secondary in close. Instead, Burnette passed sharply to Watson and then place kicked to sew up the victory, the "Big Five" and Southern Conference titles. To single out the stars would be impossible for every Carolina player played the best game of his career.

NORTH CAROLINA 40, VIRGINIA 0

The season was anti-climaxed on Thanksgiving Day with a 40-0 rout of Virginia's Cavaliers. Had not Ray Wolf used his second and third teams the major portion of the game, the Tar Heels would still be scoring. Watson Carolina's White Phantoms of 1938 again upheld the good name of a University of North Carolina basketball team and marched to its sixth straight Big Five championship. Going into the tournament as heavy favorites with a conference record of thirteen wins and two defeats, the Tarheels could not reach its top-form in the opener with Washington and Lee and fell victims to the Generals, 48-33.

Carolina opened the season with easy victories over Atlantic Christian College and Guilford. The Tarheels moved on to Davidson where the opposition stiffened. In extending Carolina to an extra period after Andy Bershak's one hand shot from the side and Captain Earl Ruth's sensational mid-floor shot tied the game 33 all, Davidson fought gamely all the way. It was Dick Worley's shot that gave Carolina the victory after each team had scored in the extra period. Worley was high scorer for Carolina with nine points. Carolina returned to the Tin Can and defeated Wake Forest, 31-26 when Foy Grubb held All Southern Waller to five points.

On the annual Virginia trip Carolina played raggedly, but made a clean sweep with victories over V.P.I., V.M.I., and W. and L. In the game with W. and L., the Tarheels trailed by seven points at half time, but finished strong to win, 34-31. Ben Dilworth and Pete Boone did some splendid defensive work in the second half and held Bob Spessard to two foul shots.

Carolina's seven game winning streak was halted abruptly at Wake Forest when the Deacons walked off with a 44-34 victory. Led with Waller's nineteen points Wake Forest was never seriously threatened.

On the annual northern trip the Tarheels met Princeton and suffered the worst drubbing given to a Carolina basketball team in several years, 53-32. Moving on to Philadelphia to meet St. Joseph's, who lost last year by a single point when Bill McCachren dropped in a goal in the last minute, Carolina was meeting a team seeking revenge and the hom team got it, but not until the Tarheels had given them a tough battle. St. Joseph's made the first seven shots good, but this did not dishearten the Phantoms. Unable to find the basket, but displaying a superb floor game led by Earl Ruth, Carolina held the local team in the second half, but lost 34-29.

Rebounding from the disastrous week Carolina hopped all over State with a 39-31 victory. Little Pete Mullis led the onslaught with sixteen points ably supported with Andy Bershak's twelve points and Earl Ruth's ten. Maryland invaded Chapel Hill and fell victims to the smooth clicking White Phantoms by the one-sided score of 43-24. Against Clemson the Tarheels looked as fine as any team to represent Carolina, including the 1934 Southern Conference champions, and led all the way to a 44-34 victory.

The team gained revenge over the highly routed New York University Violets in the Tin Can. The New Yorkers had beaten the Tarheels in Madison Square Garden the last years but it was Carolina all the way. Final score 57-39.

Carolina returned to Big Five competition and defeated Davidson and Duke with ease. V.M.I. and W. and L. came to the Tin Can and were defeated, the Tarheels extending their winning streak to nine games. In the W. and L. game Ben Dilworth outscored Bob Spessard while he remained in the game, but he fouled out late in the first half. Pete Boone, sub to Dilworth, stepped in the game and held Spessard intact for the remainder of the game as he and his teammates marked up enough baskets to win out in the last two minutes.

The W. and L. game ended the Carolina season in the Tin Can without single loss during the current campaign. The game also was the last to be played in the Tin Can since the new gymnasium will hold the games next year.

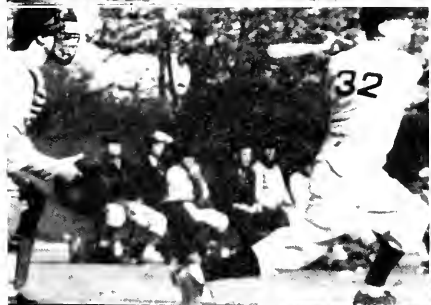

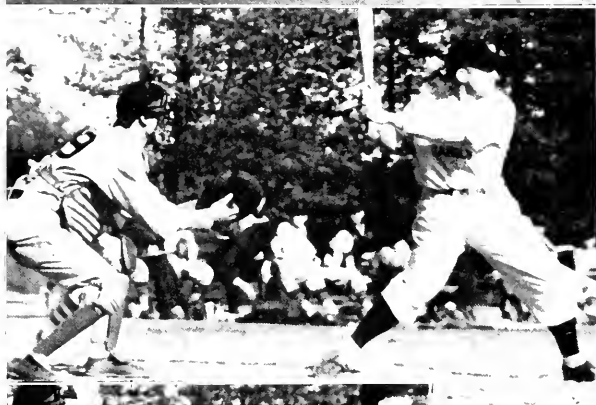

The season ended for the Phantoms at Durham where a hard fighting Duke team rallied after trailing 16-15 at half-time and won 39-33.

Carolina was the heavy favorite to win the conference title but the Tarheels had the misfortune to run up against an avengeful W. and L. team, who Carolina had twice beaten during the season. The Generals took command after the first seven minutes of play and were never threatened afterwards. Foy Grubb was high point scorer for Carolina with eleven, but Carson and Spessard made eleven and eighteen respectively to aid the Gens to their 48-33 victory.

Due to their performances during the season Captain Earl Ruth again made All Southern guard and Andy Bershak made All Southern forward. Coach Walter Skidmore probably had Earl Ruth and Pete Mullis under his supervision for the last time after having coached them in high school and four years in college. Coach Skidmore was freshman coach four years ago, but has coached varsity the last three seasons. Captain Ruth, Pete Mullis, and Andy Bershak, and Foy Grubb will be lost to the team next year since they will graduate in June.

BASEBALL

Carolina's varsity baseball stock for 1937 took a decided rise above the past two years although it did not win any titles. In the 22 games played, the Tar Heel batsmen were victorious on 12 occasions, dropped nine and tied once. At the season's outset prospects looked good, but soon gloom reared its ugly head in the Carolina camp and Pitcher Irby Wright and Outfielder Cicero Groome were lost to Coach Buan Hearn's club.

MELCHOR

PARKER

The loss of Wright left the pitching burden upon the shoulders of Daffy Parker, a sophomore. Parker took up the task in good fashion, winning eight and dropping four—two of them to Duke. In the first engagement with the Blue Devils, Parker was shelled from the mound in the first inning, but three days later came back to force Duke to an 11-12 decision that thrilled 7,000 fans at Greensboro. The 1938 season should find him at his peak with some expected recruits from Ham Strayhorn's frosh club to aid him.

BURNETTE

The team was captained by Lester "Buck" McCarn and was probably the strongest hitting team in the Conference. Tom Burnette, Foy Grubb, Mope Melchor, George Nethercutt and McCarn shown at the plate while Hal Bissett produced many a thrill on first. The season's features were two wins over Wake Forest, both games seeing Parker in masterful form. Davidson, N. C. State and V. M. I. took early wins over the Tar Heels, but these defeats were fully avenged later on in the season. Tom Burnette captains the 1938 club.

TENNIS

The North Carolina Tennis team renewed its claim to the mythical national championship of 1937 by winning 18 matches in as many starts. In repeating their claim the Tar Heels increased their win column to 126 wins against two losses since 1929.

Under the guidance of Coach John Kenfield, Captain Ramsay Potts, Archibald Henderson, Jr., Ed Fuller, John Foreman, Gordon

Robinson, Frank Farrell, Carl Rood, Bill Rood and Ed Doyle were able to go through the season without any defeats and allowing their opponents only 7 matches. Decisive victories were obtained over such teams as Yale, Duke, Williams, Army, Navy, N. Y. U., and Princeton. The Princeton game was the climax of the northern trip, and the Tigers fell before the Tar Heels by a score of 7 to 2, a repetition of 1936.

The Tar Heels were honored with an invitation to combine with Princeton to meet the Oxford-Cambridge team. Potts, Henderson, and Foreman represented the school and aided the American victory by winning their respective matches.

The loss of nine lettermen from the 1936 team considerably weakened the "Flying Tar Heels" of the cinder track in their attempt to regain the supremacy of the South in 1937. The record which the medley relay shuttle relay teams made in the Penn Relays, however, proved the quality of Carolina track training and coaching.

The Indians from Dartmouth again showed their superiority when they defeated the Tar Heels in the initial meet of the season 88-88. The only first place winners for Carolina were Gammon and Richards in the mile and javelin, respectively.

The Princeton Tigers followed Dartmouth on the schedule and the Tar Heels again came out on the short end, the score being 82-44. Richards repeated with another win and Finlay in the 100 yard dash and Gardiner in the 880 also finished first.

By virtue of 11 first places and clean sweeps in the mile, two mile, and discus the "Flying Tar Heels" defeated the Virginia Cavaliers 97 1/3-28 2/3. Corpenning was high point scorer with eleven points to his credit.

At Annapolis the Navy Middies showed power in defeating the Tar Heels 78-48. The bright spot of the day was the clean sweep by Carolina in the high hurdles. Richards continued his winning ways by outdistancing the field in the javelin with a heave of 183 feet and four inches.

With the team considerably weakened by the entry of the relay team and the stars of the hurdles at the Penn Relays the "Flying Tar Heels" still managed to defeat William and Mary 89-37. The Tar Heels were victorious in all but two events and did not lose a single first in a track event. Wakely was high scorer of the meet taking first places in the 880 and the mile.

Duke continued supreme in the state by defeating Carolina 77 1/2-48 1/2. Bannon and Winborne tied for first in the high jump, Gardiner took the 880 and Corpenning led the field in the 120 yard high hurdles for the only Tar Heel first places.

The Southern Conference meet saw the Duke Blue Devils place first with 78 points, followed by Carolina in second with 39 1/2 points. The closest race of the meet was the mile with Gammon and Hendrix forcing Duke's Morse to the limit to win.

In the AAU meet at Chapel Hill Duke was again victorious when they scored 78 points to the second place Tar Heels' 64 1/2. The Carolina 1600-metre relay team of Hendrix, Gardiner, Gammon and Ullman defeated the rest of the field in fast time. Other first places for Carolina went to Corpenning in the hop-step-and-jump, Hendrix in the 880-metre and Jones in the 5000-metre. The Carolina 440-metre shuttle hurdle relay team of Hilton, Rodgers, Graham and Corpenning won their event.

CROSS COUNTRY

Led by Captain Andy Jones the 1937 Carolina cross country team went through a hard schedule undefeated. Consistent first places by Captain Jones, Bill Hendrix, Fred Hardy and Jim Hall made it possible for the Tar Heels to ring up three perfect scores. The harriers got off to a fine start defeating the Washington and Lee Generals in the first meet of the year.

The hill and dalers then journeyed north to oppose Navy and Maryland. At Annapolis the Tar Heels avenged their defeat of the previous year with Jones, Hendrix, and Hardy setting the pace for a Carolina victory. After a single day's rest the Tar Heels met Maryland at College Park in what turned out to be the closest of the season. Bill Hendrix crossed the tape ahead of Kehoe and Chronister of Maryland, closely followed by Captain Jones in the most thrilling race of the year.

Another perfect score was registered against N. C. State. Davidson and Duke followed on successive weekends with the Tar Heels easily taking these Southern Conference foes.

The Tar Heels added another championship when they took the Southern Conference crown in Chapel Hill. Hendrix was first over the line, followed closely by Hardy of Carolina and Kehoe of Maryland. Carolina placed four men in the first seven to write finis to one of its most successful seasons.

WRESTLING

With only three letter men as a nucleus Coach Quinlan was able to build a team which took second place in the Big Five Championship. The failure of last year's championship freshman team to live up to predictions, and the lack of experience proved a handicap to the team, and Carolina won only two meets out of a possible six.

The wins registered by the squad were decisive, Davidson falling 21-11 while Duke received a 31-3 drubbing. The only state match to be dropped by the team was to N. C. State, who took the Big Five Championship by defeating Carolina 21-11.

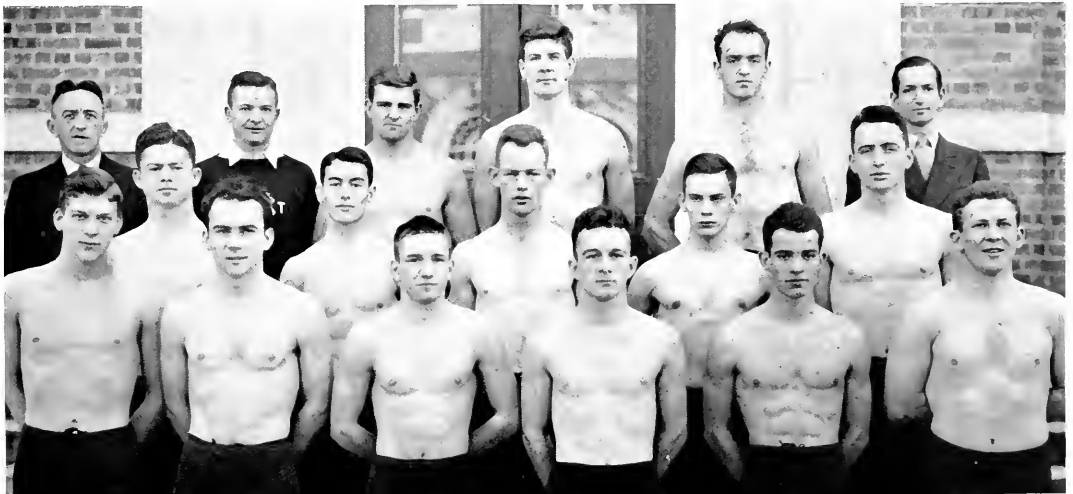

Johnson Harris and Tom Pitts were Carolina's outstanding wrestlers. The former being undefeated during the season, and the latter losing only one match. Captain Tankersley, Davison, Patrick, Joyner, James, Davis, Woodson, and Clements were the representatives in the various weights, and as all of these men will be eligible next year, this year's experience should provide an outstanding squad for the future.

1937 GOLF

North Carolina's golf team, playing its most difficult schedule ever, ended the season with the fine record of nine victories, one loss and one tie. Led by Captain Horace Hamilton, who played par golf throughout the season, the linksmen displayed their strength by handing defeats to such strong teams as Boston College, Furman, Wake Forest, Cornell, Tennessee, Davidson, The Citadel and Duke.

After a tie with N. C. State, the Wolfpack eked out a one point margin in the second meeting. The club wound up the year by taking third place in the Southern Conference tournament. Individual honors went to Dupont Kirven, who finished fourth, and Horace Hamilton, who finished eighth.

Even if you carry a spare tire, you can sit, stoop, bend, and walk in HANES Shorts—without any choking or chafing.

But that's not all there is to these shorts. You get ample clearance at the crotch . . . legs long enough and wide enough to stop binding and crawling . . . genuine "Lastex" yarn in the waist . . . and fast colors!

The only thing that tops HANES Shorts is an undershirt made by HANES. Close-knit for a close-fit, it clings snugly under your arms; never bulges or droops . . . lies calm and cool across your chest . . . tucks so far into your shorts that it can't roll up and bunch at your belt! See your HANES Dealer today. P. H. Hanes Knitting Co., Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

WE SPIN AN OLD YARN

In 1877, Alexander Chatham started a mill at Elkin in North Carolina to make "woolen piece goods and blankets." Soon famous was a homespun cloth similar to that rugged, hardy fabric woven by hand in the Blue Ridge. First popular among Carolinians, Chatham Homespun cloth quickly became known throughout the whole country as a synonym for sturdy quality in men's suits.

In an old Chatham catalog, dated 1894, Mr. W. A. Blair, President of the Peoples National Bank of Winston, said: "It gives me pleasure to state that I know their goods, which I wear myself, to be as good as the best."

About five years ago, in cooperation with a prominent New York City store, Chatham re-introduced this famous fabric, smartly tailored in several styles by a leading men's clothier. Success was instantaneous and young men everywhere "took" to this truly American cloth.

Now, Chatham Homespun suits for men are available at your local mens' store, at moderate prices. Ask to see these suits the next time you want wear, quality, and style in the suit you buy.
